Coil Construction breaks ground for new Shelter Insurance building

COLUMBIA, MO (June 12, 2018) - Coil Construction broke ground today to make way for a new building for Shelter Insurance® at Broadway and Ash Street in Columbia, MO. Community members, members of the Chamber of Commerce, and representatives from Shelter Insurance® and Coil Construction were on hand for the groundbreaking.

The new 100,000 square foot, two-story building (with partial lower level basement) will be located to the north of the Shelter Insurance® headquarters and will be the home of Shelter's local claims office, serve as a distribution center for the company's shipping, receiving and print and mailing operations, as well as house its graphic design and printing operation. The new building will face Ash Street and will include additional space to support other Shelter business functions as needed.

"This new building is a sign of our continued success," said Shelter CEO and Chairman of the Board Rick Means. "Our companies are growing and expanding into new areas, and with that comes the need for additional staff, technology and space. We believe this building will meet those needs very well."

Construction is scheduled to begin this month. After June 13, the south entrance to Shelter Gardens will be the primary entrance during construction. The new building, which overlooks Shelter Gardens, will be energy efficient and will feature LEED products and geothermal energy. In addition, the building will offer high security and safety features for its employees.
