Coil celebrates groundbreaking of new Christian Fellowship Church facility

COLUMBIA, MO (November 15, 2019) – Coil Construction celebrated the groundbreaking of the new Christian Fellowship Church located at the corner of Chapel Hill Road and Louisville Drive.

The new single-story, contemporary design facility will be 38,615 square feet, with a large open sanctuary seating more than 800. The new building also will include multi-purpose rooms and a children’s classroom wing. The building will have space for a future commercial kitchen and is designed with the possibility for future additions to the site.

“This might be the largest step as a church that we have taken in over 40 years of existence, but this is just the first step to a future that God is yet to reveal to us that we get to participate in,” said Michael Acock, executive pastor at Christian Fellowship Church. “The grace of God and his faithfulness has brought us to this point and it is a launching pad for our future as well.”

Construction is scheduled to begin in February 2020, with completion anticipated by June 2021.

“Christian Fellowship Church has been planning this project for several years. Coil Construction is excited to help them turn their plans into reality,” said Kevin Buckler, vice president of operations for Coil Construction.
