Coil project manager earns certification

COLUMBIA, MO (June 9, 2020) – Coil Construction is pleased to announce that team member Don Prose recently earned his Project Manager Professional (PMP) certification.

The PMP certification process, which involves several months of training and an exam, is designed to allow a project manager to be in any project environment and apply the same principles to guide them. The certification focuses on standardized project management techniques and processes that are critical skills for collaborating among businesses.

Prose joined the Coil team in 2011 as a project manager and has overseen projects for both new construction and remodels, overseeing projects from conceptual design through their successful completion. Prose graduated from the University of Missouri-Columbia with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering and is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Established in 1975, Coil Construction specializes in institutional, retail, professional, industrial, and health care construction throughout the Midwest, with an emphasis on commercial construction projects in Missouri.
